GENERAL REGULATIONS

The safety signs communicate a message that should be borne in mind to reduce risks at work. They will be used when:

- It is not possible to eliminate the original risk.
- It is not possible to protect against the risk by means of safety equipment.
- As a compliment to group and individual protection.

So that the signs are effective and fulfil their objective they must:

- Attract the attention of those for whom they are intended.
- Inform about the risk sufficiently in advance.
- Be sufficiently clear.
- Only have one interpretation.
- Give information on the appropriate action in each specific case.
